Secretary of State Jim Edgar, national chairman of the "Brighten O'Brien" fund drive, announces the project's success at the Union Grand Ballroom

Monday night. The $440,000 raised for lights and renovation at O'Brien Field was the goal the project set for itself last year.

O'Brien project hits $440,000 goal

Eastern President Stanley Rives announced the successful completion of the "Brighten O'Brien" fund drive at the second annual President's Club dinner Monday night.

In addition, Rives also announced an initial $80,000 donation from the Newton E. Tarble family to create an endowment program which will provide scholarships to Eastern students in the College of Fine Arts.

Rives, along with Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar, who was the national chairman of the "Brighten O'Brien" fund drive, said that $440,000 had been raised in private donations in the past year to fund the refurbishing of Eastern's football stadium.

The funds will be used to install stadium lights, as well as resurface the track and renovate the pressbox.

Donations for the stadium face-lift came from 360 people from 12 different states, Edgar said.

This proves that there are a lot of special people out there who have a special spot in their heart for Eastern, as I'm sure we all do," Edgar told the guests in the Union Grand Ballroom.

The President's Club is made up of members who have annually donated $1,000 or more to the Eastern Illinois University Foundation. Corporations who donate $5,000 annually are also members.

Currently, there are 86 active club members, Rives said.

"Brighten O'Brien" was the first capital improvement project within the foundation's Tenth Decade Campaign, an attempt to raise $5 million in private donations in five years.

Tenth Decade donation's topped the $900,000 mark on Wednesday, Daniel Thornburgh, fiscal agent for the foundation, said at the dinner.

Thornburgh also predicted the $5 million goal would be met by December of 1988, over a year before the five year timetable expires with the start of 1990.

The Tarble family donation that the foundation received, Rives said, will be matched in each of the next two years, making the total contribution $240,000.

The Tarble family previously contributed more than $1 million toward construction of the Tarble Arts Center.

"Their financial assistance has contributed greatly towards funding fine arts programs at EIU and towards providing art facilities which serve the east central Illinois public," Rives said.

The initial $80,000 donation will create an endowment intended to raise $1.5 million to provide scholarship assistance to students in the departments of art, music and theatre arts, and eventually allow for visiting artists to be brought to the Eastern campus.

Boards supply reasoning for fee increases

By AMY CARR
Staff writer

The Health Service Board and the Legal Service Board defended their proposed fee increases in an open forum Monday.

The forum, intended to answer students' questions about the proposed fee increases was only attended by a Daily Eastern News reporter and representatives from the two boards.

The Health Service Board is requesting a $1 increase in fees due to a continued rise in the cost of wholesale drugs of approximately 5 to 10 percent per year and a projected increase in operating costs of 5 to 8 percent for the University Pharmacy. This increase would raise the student fee from $2.50 to $3.50 per semester.

The increase is being offered as an alternative to an increase in prescription fees, Health Service Board Chairman Karen Abrams said.

Presently, most prescriptions are available for $1.50. This fee is applicable only on the first and second refills of the prescription. Upon the third refill, the pharmacy charges students cost prices for the prescription.

This fee is still lower than the minimal cost at an outside pharmacy, Abrams said.

The pharmacy is not out to make money, Abrams added, they are just trying to provide prescriptions to students at minimal cost.

During the past year, the pharmacy lost a total of $467 in prescription sales, and a total of $1,617 due to operating costs.

The proposed fee increase would provide the Health Service with $15,000 to $20,000, enabling them to continue to provide pharmacy services at a minimal cost, Abrams said.

The Legal Services Board is requesting a $.50 increase in the present $2 per semester fee due to cost increases.

The service, established in 1980 has not asked for an increase in the fee in its six years of operation, Legal Service Director Steve Davis said.

During the first few years, the $2 fee enabled the Student Legal Service to operate on an excess amount of cash. They have since used up the excess and are now using "a little more than what they are getting," Davis said.

The fee enables the Legal Services to offer full-time students legal advice and legal representation free of charge.

The Student Legal Service will provide representation from circuit court up to Supreme Court at no additional charge. This type of representation could cost up to $5,000 at standard rates, Davis said.

If the fee increase is not passed they will be facing a deficit of up to $4,000, Davis said.

Legal fee hike would tie Western's as highest in BOG

By DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Senior reporter

Western Illinois University's student Legal Service is similar to Eastern's—the only difference is that Western students pay $2.50 per semester in fees and Eastern students currently pay $2 per semester.

However, Steve Davis, director of Eastern's Legal Service, would like to see Eastern students pay an additional $1 per year to keep the service operating in the black.

A referendum requesting the $1 increase will be placed on a ballot for Wednesday's special election.

Officials from Eastern and Western, the only Board of Governors schools that use a student legal service, agree that their services are similar.

The three other BOG schools—Chicago State, Northeastern and Governors State—have not implemented a student legal service.

Pat Dorman, secretary office manager in legal service at Western, said, "We get quite an influx of students daily and they come to us with consumer problems, landlord-tenant problems and traffic misdemeanors problems."

Western has an enrollment of about 10,000 students, Dorman said.

Davis said about seven students use the service daily with problems that range from misdemeanor violations to off-campus living. Eastern's spring enrollment is 9,511.

In addition, students call Davis for advice on problems that concern leases, subleasees, security deposits and landlords not making repairs.

Eastern's Legal Service, which has assisted students since 1980, has about six student interns a semester.

Davis said the interns are paid $75 a month and that part of the increase would go toward interns' salaries, however, he added that he does not know what the percentage would be.

Although Dorman said Western's service is constantly busy, she does not see an increase in Western's student legal service fee in the future.

Interns at Western's Legal Service are not paid, Dorman added. Instead they earn credit for various classes.

Davis said he expects students who have used the service to vote for the increase. "Those students will see it as an advantage to them," he said.

However, "those who have not used it may have difficulty relating" to its importance, Davis said.

Davis said he hopes that those students who have not used the service realize that it is there to serve them as well.

Thompson woos Japanese

TOKYO—Gov. James R. Thompson hopes to use the planned Mitsubishi-Chrysler auto plant as a bargaining chip to lure other major Japanese companies to Illinois during his trip here, an aide said Monday.

"Mitsubishi is famous for its meticulous research, so its choice of Illinois is a good bargaining point for convincing other firms that we have a very favorable atmosphere for investing," Thompson aide Dave Fields said.

Space shuttle launch postponed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.—The launch of space shuttle Challenger with schoolteacher Crista McAuliffe in the crew was postponed today because of strong winds that built up while technicians wrestled for more than two hours with a balky hatch bolt that generated what appeared to be a comedy of errors on the pad.

"We are going to scrub for today," said NASA spokesman Hugh Harris, announcing the third postponement for the flight attempt Tuesday.

Honduras leader vows reform

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras—President Jose Azcona Hoyo, taking office in Honduras' first peaceful transfer of civilian governments in more than a half-century, vowed Monday to improve the economic and social standards of his country's 4.5 million people, most of whom are desperately poor peasants.

Azcona Hoyo, 59, was inaugurated in the capital's national sports stadium before about 40,000 spectators.

Reagan's State of Union speech expected to be short, 'visionary'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan's fifth State of the Union address, tailored for a Tuesday night television audience, will be shorter and more visionary than his previous four, White House officials say.

But it will launch three days of hard-shell by a president who will flesh out the details of his agenda in a variety of appearances around Washington later in the week.

The speech to a joint session of the House and Senate, will be broadcast live by the major radio and television networks beginning at 9 p.m. EST.

Because it is aimed more at the television audience that the officials who will hear him in person, Reagan will keep it short and simple, said a source who asked not to be identified by name.

As drafted, the speech takes about 20 minutes to read and officials are allowing an additional 10 minutes for applause, hoping it will take only about a half-hour from the evening's prime-time television schedule.

Reagan, who came to Washington five years ago committed to shrinking the size and reach of the federal government, is expected to renew that struggle, arguing that people are better off making their own financial decisions that paying taxes to a government that decides what to do with their money.

It is, one aide said privately, an effort "to redefine the role of the government for the next decade and into the next century."

Tutu raises money for prisoners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu said Monday his just-completed tour of the United States raised nearly $1 million to aid political prisoners, refugees and his Anglican Church diocese. He blasted "servile" segments of the South African media for downplaying the tour's success.

The black bishop of Johannesburg also accused the South African media of distorting his remarks during the three-week tour to suggest that he supports violent revolution rather than peaceful protest.

Meanwhile, witnesses said a 15-year-old girl was shot to death by police in a black township west of Johannesburg when a riot squad broke up a meeting that was debating whether students should return to school when the new academic year begins Tuesday. Police did not immediately confirm the shooting.

Organizers of school boycotts that have flared sporadically for two years have called on youths to return to classes and work within for change.

Admission standards

IBHE dream promises transcript nightmare

By MIKE BURKE
Staff writer

The greatest impact on Eastern caused by the new admission requirements will not be on the number of students attending the university, administrators say, but on the way high school transcripts will be handled.

Admissions Director Dale Wolf said there is "no question" but that additional funding and staffing will be needed in Eastern's admission office to handle the increased workload created as new requirements go into effect.

Eastern's admission requirements are being raised beginning in 1988, and will be risen once again in 1990 to meet the mandatory statewide college admission requirements the Illinois Board of Higher Education recently passed.

Under the new state requirements, high school students will need four years of English, three years each of social studies, math and laboratory science, and two years of fine arts or foreign language, in order to be admitted into Illinois colleges.

The increased funding will be needed, Wolf said, because the task of interpreting high school transcripts to see if students meet the requirements will become more involved and time-

Stiff standards

This is the second in a series of four articles on the costs—in both money and students—for high schools and colleges which must adapt curricula to meet recently approved entry standards adopted by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

consuming.

Additional staff will also be needed to handle the additional clerical work, he said.

The additional interpreting of transcripts will become necessary because the college admission requirements will be higher than many schools' graduation requirements.

Currently, most students apply to Eastern in their senior year of high school and their transcripts are submitted after graduation.

With the new requirements, Eastern will request high school transcripts at the time of application. This will allow enough time for the university to interpret each transcript individually in order to see if the raised standards are met.

The job of interpreting high school transcripts is quite a chore, said Samuel Taber, dean of student academic services.

"There's a real pain in the neck to look at," he said.

Problems arise for a variety of reasons, Taber said.

One of the main sources of headaches is that all high schools have different kinds of transcripts. A standardized form for high school transcripts throughout the state would be helpful, Taber said, adding that may be done in the future.

And many high school transcripts list courses only by name, not by the content of the material taught in the course. Since different schools might teach the same material under different course names, it is difficult to get consistent interpretations of which admission requirement the course fulfills.

One example Wolf gave involved the social science admission requirement. Although two years of social science will be required for admission, it is often difficult to tell social science courses simply by looking at their titles.

Confusion over course content will be time-consuming because workers in the admission office will often have to contact high schools to get the additional information that will allow them to interpret transcripts, Wolf said.

Requiring students to send their transcripts at the time of application will cause other problems concerning time, Taber said.

Most high school students apply to more than one college. Eastern receives about 5,000 applications each year, about half of which eventually become freshmen here.

Therefore, while the admissions office is interpreting transcripts from students who will end up attending other universities, those universities will be spending the same amount of time processing applications of students who will attend Eastern.

The increased time that will be needed to handle high school transcripts will require more money and staff in the admissions office. That increased funding will be needed soon, Taber said.

Eastern admission requirements go up within two years from now, and the budgeting process is a long, drawn-out affair, he said.

Triumphant Bears welcomed with ticker-tape parade

CHICAGO (AP)—The Bears returned home Monday in a ticker-tape parade through the downtown financial district, where they were greeted by hundreds of thousands of cheering fans who clogged the streets, waved from windows and poured tons of shredded paper on their heroes.

After a six-block parade, Bears President Michael McCaskey carried the Super Bowl's gleaming silver Vince Lombardi trophy through the crowd and onto a podium at Daley Plaza.

McCaskey was welcomed by Mayor Harold Washington, who was clad in an orange-and-blue Bears stocking cap.

"Super Bowl champions," Washington roared at the thousands who had braved arctic temperatures to jam the plaza, which last week was temporarily named "Bears Plaza" in honor of the team.

"Today in this country, everybody is a Chicago Bear fan," said McCaskey, who then broke into the "woof, woof, woof, woof" dog bark used by the Bears defensive line.

Defensive tackle Steve "Mongo" McMichael told the crowd, "We got braggin' rights over the whole (darned) country."

The Bears arrived about an hour later than expected from New Orleans, where they defeated the Patriots Sunday, 46-10. They were ferried down LaSalle Street on buses, as children climbed trees and lamp posts to catch a glimpse and paper fluttered through the air like swirling snow.

A number of team members climbed atop the buses and waved as fans—many carrying teddy bears, waving pennants or thrusting their index fingers skyward in a victory symbol—jostled to catch a glimpse.

Fans also tried to climb onto the bus roofs, some falling back to the crowded street.

"Having a ticker-tape parade in Chicago is so wonderful, I just wanted to be a part of it," said Dorothy Bloom, 33, of Chicago.

"We're part of it; that's the big thing," said Paul Holmen, a carpenter.

Police Lt. William McTighe estimated that 500,000 lined the parade route.

City's appearance could be improved by seed plant site

Spring is traditionally the time for planting new crops. And if the Garst Seed Co. locates its roots in Charleston, the city would be the beneficiary of badly needed job opportunities in 1988.

After the recent closings of several downtown businesses and the Samuel shoe factory last spring, many area workers have been left unemployed making Charleston's current jobless rate 9.1 percent.

There is no insurance that Charleston's jobless rate would be lessened by the location of the seed plant in the city, but it would create incentive for other developers to consider the area as future construction sites.

Officials of Garst, the nation's third largest agricultural seed producer, said they are looking for a site to build a packaging outlet by 1988. Garst is said to want a location south of Champaign and east of Decatur, which would presumably put Charleston in a prime location.

If the company selects Charleston as the site of the plant, it would create at least 50 full-time jobs and about 200-300 part-time seasonal jobs.

However, Garst regional sales manager Dean Steikoening said one possible drawback of placing the plant in Charleston is it lacks a major east-west interstate.

Although the city has weathered a long spell of business closures, a new plant would be just what Charleston needs to regain its confidence and begin rebuilding a strong industrial community.

But with strong competitors like Mattoon, Oakland, Sullivan and west-central Indiana also vying for the plant, Charleston administrators should meet with company officials with open arms to make an unbeatable package of what can be offered. Although city officials have yet to talk with Garst officials, a meeting date should be scheduled as soon as possible to learn more about the potential of placing the plant in Charleston.

Charleston's depressed job market, low industrial image and suffering economy can only be improved by planting the Garst Seed Co. packaging outlet in Charleston.

Student Legal Service asks for $1 hike in fees

Editor:

On Wednesday, you will be asked to vote for a 50 cent increase in the fee that supports the Student Legal Service.

The Student Legal Service employs a full-time lawyer, assisted by interns, to provide all full-time Eastern students with legal counsel and advice. An office is maintained in the University Union. Many students with landlord/tenant disputes have been represented in Circuit Court by the Legal Service attorney. The Legal Service plans to expand its service by offering to represent students in certain cases of misdemeanors as well.

Anyone can find themselves in need of legal assistance.

The $2 per student fee which supports the Student Legal Service has not been increased since the service began six years ago. A voluntary Board of Directors, composed of students and staff members, oversees the Legal Service and its budget. We fully support the proposed 50 cent increase in order to maintain this very worthwhile and economical service for the students at Eastern.

Please support your Student Legal Service by voting yes on Wednesday.

Mobster picture wrong

Dear Ms. Wright:

I had a hard time reading your "Mobster meeting enlightening." It was very stereotypical and annoying. Despite my name, Everett, I am a bit more than one-half Italian (my mother's maiden name was Marzullo). I have extensive knowledge into Italian culture, and have visited the "old country" twice myself.

First off, after seeing shows like The Mafia Princess, and movies like The Godfather, it is quite easy to get a bent impression of Italians—in the 1940s. Rarely do I see men of the mafia with slicked back hair and scars on thier faces. I bet your mobster had on a black suit (with pinstripes), a red carnation and a fedora? Most dress normally and hold down respectable second jobs.

Second, the "small Italian tailor" would never mention mafioso, or mafia or La Costra Nostra. It is an unspoken rule that you don't mention any of these words.

Third all, the modern mobster rarely carries a gun, because many cannot obtain gun permits. In the eyes of an Italian man, the women never meddle in business, and would never carry a gun. So give us gold jewelry laden, spaghetti-chomping greaseballs a break. If the "Big Tuna" read your column, he would probably break your legs.

Lack of enthusiasm kills game's spirit

In case you haven't heard, the Bears won the Super Bowl. I still can't believe it. For once I supported a team that actually won a championship. It's amazing.

But as I watched the game and post-game announcements, I was even more amazed. No one really seemed that excited.

During the game it was almost like the announcers knew the Bears would win, so they didn't get excited about the team's crushing victory.

I guess I'm more the Harry Carey type than the Merlin Olsen type. I mean, when a team is trampling another team, I want to hear the announcer shout with the fans. Objective reporting is admirable, but sports are too emotional to be taken seriously.

And surely no one predicted that the final score would be 46-10. At least that was something to get excited about.

The announcers weren't the only ones who could have used a bit more enthusiasm. After the game, the Bears were the most laid back victors imaginable. Maybe they were in shock. I don't know.

Even so, it would have been more memorable if the stereotypical lockerroom scene of pouring champagne on each other's heads would have occurred. It didn't even feel like a Super Bowl win. They were just too calm.

And Ditka didn't do much to get fans excited. With the look on his face, one would have thought the Bears had lost.

Thank goodness for those die-hard Bears fans in Chicago. At least they were excited.

After the game was over, I talked to my parents. My mother, who does not support sports, went to downtown Chicago Sunday and told me that it was practically impossible to move through the streets.

What's the point?

Diane Schneidman

That's the way it should be. When a team who has almost been a disgrace for years wins the Super Bowl by 36 points, people should be running through the streets. Alcohol should be abundant. It's just good manners.

After my mother told me of her tribulations with dealing with Bears fans, I watched the news. It shouldn't have bothered. It only made me mad.

A certain Terre Haute, Ind., television station posed a question to its viewers. It was something to the effect of, "Is there too much hype surrounding the Bears and the Super Bowl?"

Well, it depends on one's perspective. I suppose if I was from Indiana, I would say yes. But as an Illinois person, I would say no. There's no way there could be too much hoopla. Chicagoans have felt the agony of defeat for generations. We finally have something to be proud of.

And as noted earlier, there was very little excitement once the game was finally played, even though it was a record-breaking game.

Maybe the Bears shouldn't play as well next year. At least then people would show some emotion—like anger.

New TAC director named

By MARK MATHIEU
Staff writer

A new director of the Tarble Arts Center has been selected for Eastern. Michael Watts, 34, will take over Feb. 15, replacing Robert Evans, who resigned last summer.

Janet Messenger has been filling in as acting director since Evans' resignation, which Messenger said was for "personal reasons."

When Watts takes over as director, Messenger will resume her former duties as curator, while acting curator James Krehbiel will leave Eastern at a later date.

Watts, currently the director of the Clara M. Eagle & Curris Galleries at Murray State (Kentucky) University, will take over TAC director duties on Feb. 15.

His duties, which will be "very similar" to his duties at his current position in Kentucky, will "include just about everything," that goes along with the "general operation of the facility," Messenger said.

Watts' hiring marks the third TAC director since the center opened in June 1982. The first was Donald Carmichael who was hired in 1979 to organize the opening. Carmichael retired in 1984 and was replaced by Evans, who resigned last summer.

The announcement was made by Vaughn Jaenike, dean of the College of Fine Arts. Jaenike said there were about 35 applicants for the job.

Besides looking for a new director, the fine arts college has been looking for new ideas to help promote the Tarble Arts Center.

"The center has two goals. One is to serve the campus community but the other that needs to be stressed is the Charleston community," Jaenike said.

Watts said he was looking forward to coming to Eastern.

"I'll have to wait and see what ideas I can come up with after arriving," he said.

Watts attended Western Illinois University and as an undergraduate was an assistant to the director of Brown Hall Galleries 1974 and 1975. He received a bachelor's degree from Western in 1975 and a master's degree from the University of Texas in 1977.

Students plead not guilty in raid

By JIM ALLEN
City editor

Three students charged in the recent bar raids said they pleaded innocent Friday, because they were nowhere near any drinks when police approached them.

Six of the 35 Eastern students charged with frequenting a bar as a minor and/or possession of alcohol as a minor pleaded not guilty Friday.

All six were set for bench trials at 10 a.m. March 12 in Coles County Circuit Court. Another 28 students pleaded guilty Friday and were fined $35 each.

But City Attorney Tony Sunderman said the city will recommend stiffer fines for those who pleaded innocent if they are found guilty. The higher fine will pay for the extra time the city will take in preparing the cases, Sunderman said.

Freshmen Douglas R. Grant, 19, Scott W. Alberson, 19, and Amy H. Fanta, 18, all pleaded innocent after being arrested together in Page One Tavern, 410 S. Sixth St.

Each alleged Monday that they were not drinking when police entered the bar, but police ignored them when they pointed this out to the officers.

"I was really upset," Alberson said, "because I was 19 that night—it was my birthday.

"I did not have a beer in my hand," Alberson said, adding that he plans to bring two witnesses to court to verify his story.

Grant said that when the officers walked in he was at a table with Fanta and while she had a beer, he didn't. "I guess they presumed that I had been drinking one of the beers on the table.

But Fanta said she "wasn't even sitting at a table," adding that she was also not holding a beer.

Grant said, "They didn't catch me drinking. . . I had been drinking that night but I can't say now whether I was drinking at Roc's (Page One Tavern.) I tried to tell them that was the deal, but they wouldn't listen. Hopefully the judge will hear me out."

In addition, Fanta said, "If they let you in there, how are you supposed to know you're doing something wrong?"

Fanta also said she was taking medication at the time of the raid which kept her from drinking. She said she didn't know whether she would use the prescription in her defense, because she was "behind in taking it" and should have finished it by the date of the raid.

City says it will pursue bar fines

By TOM McKENNA
Staff writer

City attorney Tony Sunderman said he plans to vigorously pursue the charges against owners of eight Charleston bars in which more than 30 Eastern students were arrested Jan. 16.

"The only charge being pursued at this time is underaged frequenting of a bar," Sunderman said, adding that the fines range from $1 to $500 per offense.

Sunderman said Charleston Mayor Murray Choate—also the liquor commissioner—recommended that the city seek a much higher amount than has been paid by students who were recently fined.

Twenty-eight students who pleaded guilty Friday to underaged drinking and/or frequenting a bar as a minor were fined $54 each. Six pleaded innocent and one failed to appear.

Sunderman said Page One Tavern, 410 S. Sixth St., was shut down last February by the Charleston liquor commission under similar charges. However, he said no official court proceedings took place. He added that several other area bars have been involved in related incidents in the past.

Caterpillar officials talk with business societies

By DONNELLE PARDEE
Staff writer

Eastern's business department will host representatives from the Caterpillar Tractor Company Tuesday through Thursday as speakers for six student organizations.

Ted Ivarie, dean of the college of business, said the Caterpillar employees are coming to help students learn what lies ahead and what skills and knowledge they will need to succeed in business.

Wilber Dronen, hosted by the American Society for Personnel Administrators, will speak on labor relations and management at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

Jim Zinkhon, hosted by the Data Processing Management Association, will be discussing data processing at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the west end of the Union Ballroom.

Bob Oliverius, hosted by Pi Omega Pi, will speak on administrative services 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Union Ballroom.

Larry Newbanks, hosted by the American Production and Inventory Control Society, will speak on operations management at 6:30 p.m. in the Union addition Kansas Room.

Shirley Collinson, hosted by Phi Gamma Nu, will speak on management at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room. This will not be open to the public.

Roger Motsinger, hosted by Master of Business Administration Association, will speak on management training at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Oakland Room.

Seminar focuses on books

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Activities editor

New Ways to Hit the Books, a Counseling Center workshop, will be presented in two parts Tuesday and Wednesday night from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Union Arcola-Tuscola room.

Each session will cover different aspects of good study skills.

Counseling Center Director Bud Sanders said Tuesday's session will be led by Shirley Moore, dean of academic development, and will concern methods of taking lecture notes, taking notes from textbooks, and a discussion of "classroom protocol," Sanders said.

Wednesday's session, led by Sanders, will cover methods of time management and motivation.

"You've got to have a plan." Students need to make a plan to decide what they need to do, when they need to do it and how they need to study it, Sanders said.

Reading Center tutors students

By CHRYSTAL PHILPOTT
Staff writer

Eula Montgomery, coordinator of the Individualized Assistance Program in the Reading Center, is the guest speaker at Tuesday's International Tea, which will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation, 2202 Fourth Street.

Montgomery plans to discuss the Individual Assistance Program, which she said can be a great help not only to foreign students, but to anyone who does any reading.

"We're not a tutoring service as such that we tutor students in subjects they're having problems in. They don't have to be a student who's having great difficulty in school. It can also be for those who want to sharpen their reading skills."

Montgomery said she wants foreign students to know that any time they are having difficulty reading their texts they can come in and get assistance.

The Connection tops poll of IM officials, supervisors

By TIM LEE
Staff writer

The Connection, intramural basketball champions in the men's league for the past two years, has been tabbed as the number one team again this year by a poll of IM supervisors and officials.

The poll, which names the top ten teams in the same manner as the Associated Press names its college Top 20, will be run weekly until the end of the intramural regular season. This week's poll does not include Monday's games.

The Connection, 1-0, picked up two of three first place votes and 27 total points after they rolled up a 71-58 win last week over Studs-n-Suds.

They are followed by The Chairmen, 0-0, with 24 points and Sigma Pi, 1-0 by default, with 23. The Raiders, 0-0 and last year's second place team, took fourth with 19 points and also nabbed the remaining first-place vote. The F.B. Burners II, 0-0, round out the top five with 18 points.

The second five begins with a tie between the Bud Lights, 1-0, and Sigma Chi, 1-0. They are followed by the Equalizers, 0-0, Murphy's Law, 1-0, and Delta Chi, 1-0.

Intramural program adds all-star basketball game

By DOBIE HOLLAND
Staff writer

In an effort to involve students with athletics and have fun in the process, athletic promotions director John Seketa and intramural director David Dutler have created the Intramural All-Star game.

"I think it's a good way to get students involved with the intramural program," Seketa said. "It's a good way to bring recognition to intramural sports on campus."

Dutler agreed by saying, "I give them (promotions) my full support; and I think it's a good idea."

Dutler added that the idea of the all-star game was Seketa's brain child and he would support him in any way possible.

The contest is a rare joint venture between the IM and athletic offices and will take place on at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 6, prior to the Eastern-Evansville game, Seketa said.

Seketa said students interested in trying out for the team must have their team captain nominate one single player—a player the team wants as their all-star—and submit his name to the intramural office by 12 p.m. Friday.

"I encourage people to wear their intramural athletic shirts to game and support intramural athletics by coming out to the games," Seketa said.

A possible 138 team representatives will appear Sunday for a 10 a.m. round out session conducted by Panther coaches Steve Yount, Hank Harrison and Mike Church.

The coaches will select two teams of players each, to play in the all-star game.

Two honorary coaches will be chosen by Seketa and his staff for the team. The coaches will be university figures that have a reputation for working with students and can identify with them, Seketa said.

"Someone like Dr. River, for example, may be a coach," he said. "However, he is probably too busy to participate and we know that."

"Right now I don't have an idea of who we will choose as honorary coaches. I would like to have (Chick) Bears Quarterback) Jim McMahon," Seketa said with a chuckle.

PGA mark challenged early

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Al Geiberger breathed a sigh of relief when he surveyed the subtle terrors of the three fabled courses on the Monterey Peninsula.

He took delight in—and a certain comfort from—the gnarled and twisted trees, the deep bunkers, the gusty winds, the waiting water; all those manifestations of the golfing horrors.

"I sure am glad to be getting away from those easy golf courses. These gqys were making me nervous," said Geiberger, who, in 1977, set the PGA Tour's scoring record with a 59.

In a remarkable assault on par that has been produced by golf's touring pros early this season, that record—Geiberger's proudest possession and one of the game's landmark standards—has come under fire.

Can it be reached?

"Anything is possible," Geiberger said.

Bears' success dampened by interior strife

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—At the moment of their greatest success, there are troubling little chinks in the armor of the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears.

This is a team constructed around a vaunting defense and its cherubic coach, Buddy Ryan. But Ryan and head coach Mike Ditka have not always operated on the same wave length and other teams have talked to the defensive coordinator about head coaching opportunities.

Could the Bears run Ryan's "46" defense as effectively without its designer there on the sidelines, constantly fine tuning it?

Then there is Richard Dent, one of Chicago's most important up-front operatives, who has been unhappy with his $90,000 salary, petty cash by today's football economic standards.

How much, then, do you pay the Super Bowl MVP?

And of course, there also is the matter of season-long holdouts Todd

Bell and Al Harris and whether they return to the Bears' lair next season.

If they do come back, what do you pay them? Certainly not as much as the guys who won the championship for you. Perhaps more importantly, where do you play them?

And remember, too, that no team in this decade of NFL parity has been able to repeat a Super Bowl triumph.

Ditka, understandably, did not want to face those problems Monday. "Next year? I'm not going to worry about that for a while," he said. "Let's savor this for a while. Savor the present. The past we can't control. The future you have a chance."

But will Ryan, Bell and Harris be a part of that future?

The Philadelphia Eagles have talked to Ryan about their head coaching job and with Jim Mora reportedly set for New Orleans, the Bears' assistant could be the front runner for that vacancy. Could he move up?

Triple jumper Simpkins 'inches' toward limelight

NEW YORK (AP)—William "The Refrigerator" Perry, the Chicago Bears' hugely successful rookie defensive tackle, has been largely responsible for making some people aware of the little town of Aiken, S.C.

Triple jumper Charlie Simpkins doesn't think Perry has been solely responsible, though.

"Me and him helped put it on the map," Simpkins said with a laugh, about Aiken, a city with a population of about 15,000.

Although putting himself ahead of the popular Perry, the very visible 300-pounder who has made a tremendous impact on the National Football League and on television in his first season with the Bears, Simpkins actually has made very little impact with the public despite some remarkable accomplishments in recent months.

For example, on Jan. 17, Simpkins set a world indoor best in the triple jump, soaring 57 feet, 5 inches in the Sunkist Invitational at Los Angeles, breaking the mark of 57-2½, held by Willie Banks, the outdoor world record holder at 58-11½.

And Sept. 2, 1985, Simpkins, a junior at Baptist College in Charleston, S.C., became the first triple jumper to surpass 58 feet twice in the same meet, leaping 58-0¼, then 58-7¼—a collegiate record—in the World University Games at Kobe, Japan.

Now, Simpkins has his sights set on becoming the first 59-foot triple jumper in history—a feat he thinks will begin earning him some the recognition that the ubiquitous Perry has received.

Simpkins said it was unlikely that he would be able to reach that distance until the outdoor season.

Duckworth receives AMCU- 8 honor

By DAN VERDUN
Assistant sports editor

Eastern center Kevin Duckworth was selected as AMCU-8 Player-of-the-Week Monday by conference officials.

The 7-foot, 280-pound senior scored 73 points and pulled down 30 rebounds in the Panthers' three conference games last week.

Duckworth scored a career-high 26 points in Saturday's 88-80 loss to Valparaiso.

"It's great to be recognized, especially in this conference," Duckworth said following Monday's practice.

Duckworth also feels the award is the springboard toward attaining all-conference status at season's end.

"Last year I thought I'd make all-conference team, but I didn't," Duckworth said. "So this year I just want to strive for my goal to make all-conference team."

Duckworth has also enjoyed strong shooting performances in recent Panther games.

"Right now, I'm playing pretty hard," Duckworth said. "I have more confidence in my game than since I've been playing here."

"Right now everything's going great for me, my hook shot is falling (and) my jump shot is falling."

Duckworth is averaging 18.6 points and 9.1 rebounds per game. In AMCU-8 contests, his numbers increase to 22.8 points and 9.2 boards a game.

Yet, Duckworth still feels his defense stands room for improvement.

"That's always lacking, that's why I say defense, one-on-one post defense," Duckworth said.

Ditka shuns talk of a Bear dynasty

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—His players talked dynasty but Mike Ditka didn't, suggesting Monday that his Chicago Bears would have to repeat this year's romp through the NFL before they could be compared with teams like Green Bay and Pittsburgh of seasons past.

"I don't believe in the word 'dynasty,'" Ditka said at a news conference the day after the Bears had swamped the New England Patriots 46-10 in the 20th Super Bowl to complete an 18-1 season.

"You don't judge a team on one year or one playoff series or one game. The great Green Bay teams and the great Pittsburgh teams did it year after year. We're an awfully good football team. We proved that this year, but we're not a dynasty yet."

In fact, the Bears will be entering the 1986 season bearing the championship burden that's brought down every NFL champion this decade.

Since the Steelers won their second straight Super Bowl and fourth overall in 1980, no NFL champion has repeated. In fact, only the 1982 and 1983 Washington Redskins have gone to two straight Super Bowls during the 1980s.

That fact didn't stop some of the Bears from venting their exuberance after Sunday's game.

"I think we have the makings of a dynasty," said defensive end Richard Dent, the Super Bowl's most valuable player.

"We're the youngest team in pro football and we're the most dominant," defensive tackle Steve McMichael said. "What can you say? Is this a dynasty? I hope so."

"It goes on for the next five years," wide receiver Willie Gaul said. "We want to be the team of the decade. We want to go to the Super Bowl four or five times and win it like the Steelers did in the '70s."

"We're the best of all time, no question," strong safety Dave Duerson said of the Chicago defense, which shut out the New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams in the Bears' first two playoff games. Overall, Chicago outscored three playoff opponents 101-10.

But while the Bears seem to have a right to talk dynasty, so did the San Francisco 49ers a year ago after completing a similar 18-1 season with a 38-16 rout of the Miami Dolphins. The Dolphins, the only team to beat the Bears this season, had lost only two games previously.

Pats' loss doesn't dim fans' hopes

BOSTON (AP)—New England Patriots fans, who have waited for a quarter of a century for a championship season, were licking their wounds Monday after the Super Bowl mauling of their National Football League team by the Chicago Bears.

But at least one sports psychologist and many fans said the 46-10 loss only will be a fleeting pain for fans of the Patriots, who were drubbed 51-10 by the San Diego Chargers in the American Football League championship of 1963, their last title game.

"I think it will be more embarrassing than anything," Bob Malekoff, research director at Northeastern University's Center of the Study of Sports in Society, said of the impact of the game.

The Patriots were scheduled to arrive from New Orleans at 9:45 p.m. EST Monday at Logan International Airport before heading to Foxboro.

"Here is a team that people thought might get into the playoffs, but people knew it would be tough to win," he said. "People will sit back and think about the feat of getting to the Super Bowl."

That thought seemed to sustain many Patriots fans once Super Bowl XX ended.

"These guys (Patriots) have nothing to be ashamed of," said Dennis Trebino, 34, who had watched the game at the Endzone Lounge in Foxboro, site of the Patriots' Sullivan Stadium. "I guarantee you they are going to win the Super Bowl next year."

Patriots fans who traveled to New Orleans to watch the game said the rout didn't dim their faith either.

"I don't know where the next Super Bowl is, but we drove here and it took us 24 hours to get here non-stop. And if it takes us 30 hours next year, we're going to be there with them because they're going," one Patriots fan told Boston radio station WEEI.

Malekoff said it would have been harder for Bears fans to cope with a loss because they were such favorites.

Panthers must again answer call for victory

For a time it appeared that Eastern was unbeatable in Lantz Gym. But, consecutive losses to Cleveland State and Valparaiso have proven otherwise.

Going into last Thursday's contest with the place Vikings, the Panthers had won nine straight and 19 of 21 home games.

But a 112-89 thrashing handed the Panthers their first Lantz Gym loss since the Vikings dropped Eastern 78-70 last season.

Saturday's 88-80 upset to Valparaiso marked the first time Eastern had lost two straight Lantz Gym dates since 1982-83—the season the Panthers set a school record by losing their first 12 games.

Earlier this season, Eastern's youth-oriented team faced the challenge of overcoming a road losing streak.

But a return home and a 85-66 drubbing of Division-III Millikin seemed to provide the Eastern needed.

In addition, Eastern's youth proved that it can not only play on the road in NCAA basketball, but also make major contributions toward winning games.

The victory over Millikin sent the Panthers on a road journey that resulted in four-of-five wins.

Included among those wins was an added victory to Hawaii in which Eastern not only took in sun and swimsuits, but also the championship of the Seaside Classic.

Even though the Panthers fell in lop-sided fashion (90-68) to Northeast Louisiana at the road trip, Eastern had proven it could bounce back from losing and doubt.

The success of that holiday tear carried over into the AMCU-8 conference season.

Eastern survived a scare in the form of a second shot by the AMCU's leading scorer, Rick Kraayenbrink that bounded off the rim to post a 66 win in the conference opener at Northern Iowa.

The Panthers then romped past arch-rival Western Illinois in an emotionally-charged 81-68 rout in Lantz Gym.

Following an easy 77-52 victory at home over Wisconsin-Green Bay, the Panthers earned Rick Samuels' first win at Southwest Missouri State as center Kevin Duckworth tipped home a buzzer-beating shot for a 68-67 triumph.

The win also set the stage for the Panthers' place showdown with Cleveland State.

But, not even a hostile crowd of 6,235 pounding, waving, potato chip eating Eastern fans could shake the Vikings from running away with the victory and sole possession of first.

While the loss to Cleveland State may have been expected, Saturday's loss to Valparaiso came as a shocking surprise.

The loss—a combination of a lackluster Panther performance and Valparaiso's resurgent shooting—again raised questions and doubts about Eastern's fortunes.

And although its losing string stands at just two games, Eastern—in the midst of AMCU-8 play—must again answer the call as it did earlier this season.

"Any time you play the course of a season you got to keep playing game after game; so I don't think you can blame anything on your past games," Samuels said after the Valpo loss.

And with two losses and the blame behind them, the Panthers are anticipating Thursday's contest game at Illinois-Chicago holds both answers for victory.
